TOOLS OF ESTATE PLANNING

There are various tools of Estate Planning. However, the most common ones used in India are:

- Will
- Trust

WHAT IS A WILL?

- Legal document intended to pass one’s wealth to his desired beneficiary.
- Easy way to ensure how and in what proportion the assets are to be distributed to the respective beneficiaries
- Will comes into existence after one’s lifetime

THE ESSENTIAL CHARACTERISTICS OF WILL

- Individual should be a major and of sound mind
- Requires an Executor (Preferable someone who is local & accessible)
- Requires witnessing by two people
- Requires attachment of doctor’s certificate
- Can be revoked by the individual/ person at any time
- Witness should not be a beneficiary

BENEFITS OF A WILL

- Ensures peace of mind and security
- Ensures distribution of one’s assets to the loved ones in the proportion as desired
- Smooth and hassle-free transfer of assets to the beneficiaries
- Appointment of guardian for minors
- Appointment of trusted Executor

WHO CAN MAKE A WILL?

- One who has assets and thinks they are valuable & precious
- Any person who is a major
- Any person of sound mind

WHAT IF THERE IS NO WILL?

- If there is no will, the property will devolve according to the personal law of the deceased
- Absence of a Will may make the process of transferring assets to the beneficiaries'/family member's name very time consuming and costly
- Legal heirs may find it difficult transferring Demat account, mutual funds, bank accounts and fixed deposits in their names.

SHOULD A WILL BE REGISTERED?

- Yes. (Though it is not mandatory)
- Once the Will is drafted, it is highly recommended that it be registered with the Sub-registrar in the district courts.
- A registered Will is seen as more authenticated than an unregistered Will in case of dispute.

WHAT IS WILL EXECUTION?

- Next step to Will writing, after the life time of the person writing the Will
- Will execution ensures that the assets are transferred to the beneficiary as per the wishes mentioned in the Will
